

Assignment

1. Write a sender and receiver side program that verifies a sequence of data bits using Hamming Code. Create a random bit error generating model that takes as input the data bits and invert bits at random bit places before transmitting it to the receiver. The objective of the model is to generate errors in the data. The receiver checks the received data bits for error detection and correction using Hamming code mechanism and replies back to the sender.